THE HONEYMOON COOK.

Conditions Changed So Much That She Concluded to Remain.

By HARRIET G. CAMPBELL.

They had been married two years, "long enough," Prue suddenly declared, "to dispense with all honeymoon demonstrations."

Tom Dawson put down his evening paper and stared at the pretty little partner of his joys and sorrows. "I'm afraid I don't understand, dear," he said.

"Why, it's very simple. If you know that I care for you and I am certain that you care for me—all signs of a fiction are quite superfluous. They may be dropped."

"Don't talk daftness," "Well, what shall I drop first? There was a twinkle in his eyes, and Prue saw it. "To be serious," she pleaded, "to begin with you must not kiss me when you come home to dinner and—other times. You must drop—"

"Drop you a courtesy instead," he interrupted her laughingly.

"Don't be ridiculous, Tom! You know very well that there are many useless customs that should be abandoned, many things that should be dropped."

"Yes," he said, smiling whimsically. "Hannah thinks so, too. She dropped her honeymoon demonstrations. We must take lessons of that girl. Prue, or drop her. On the whole, I think we'd better drop her."

"It will not be necessary," she said with dignity. "Hannah gave notice this morning. I shall have to do some one else within a week."

"I'm sorry—sorry that I am not for the family she'll drop down on next. Hannah's no featherweight, you know. Speaking of dropping—"

"I am not speaking of it now. It is a quite useless while you are in such a mood," she said indignantly, rising from her chair.

Before she could leave the room Tom was at her side. "Forgive me, dear," he said. "I don't know you were in such a mood. Excuse me." He stepped to the pink check next to him, and Prue lifted a protesting hand. "Don't, Tom," she said. "You forget, it isn't necessary."

"No, it isn't necessary," the words came soberly enough now—"only sweet and natural."

And the next day when the time came to say good-by, Prue had no more to say than, "I am not a featherweight, you know. Speaking of dropping—" had recently stopped in speaking to her husband.

"Very glad," he answered. "It is an improvement on the usual school children's essay."

The dinner was excellent, and Matilda was very attentive in her service at table, beaming on them as though she would say, "This is my child."

Late in the evening, when they were apparently much absorbed in reading, they heard a strange sound, half cough, half sob, in the hall.

"I've looked up from the book," "What was that?" she said. Tom was on his way to the door when Matilda entered the room. "It was me, ma'am," she said.

AS THE CHILDREN SEE IT.

London Youngsters Write Essays on the North Pole.

Over in London they have adopted the principle of sending school children by means of present day topics.

In one school, after repeated lectures by the teacher, the children were asked to write essays on the recent discovery of the North Pole. Here are selected from some of these literary efforts:

"There is now a lot of talk about the discovery of the North Pole," commences a girl of ten. "Dr. Cook was supposed to have reached it, but when he got there Capt. Peary came up over the side and told Mr. Cook the pole belonged to him. They both became very angry and waved the Stars and Stripes, but presently agreed to leave it in the hands of the President of America."

Says another: "A lot of people have been trying to find the North Pole, but when they got there they died, and their bones were found by Dr. Cook and Capt. Peary. The reason was that they were very hungry and did not have any food with them."

The following is the result of a serious effort by a little girl who has mixed the North and South Poles: "A lot of men have been trying to reach the North and South Poles, and at last there have been two—Dr. Cook and Capt. Peary, but Dr. Cook was the first. It is very cold at the North Pole and always moving, but there is nothing to be seen but birds of snow. That is why it is called the North Pole. Lieut. Shackleton tried to get there, but went the wrong way. Mother says that soon there will be ships flying around the North Pole. You would say it is the opinion of the North Pole. The essay runs:

"Just lately it has been said that the North Pole has been reached. Some people say it is a story. The man who said he reached it first was Dr. Cook, and there is another man, named Capt. Peary. Mrs. Peary went with him. When they got to the pole a child was born there, when it was two years old, they now call it the Snow Baby. It was born covered with hair, and had a lot of fur round its eyes."

Another essayist affirms that Capt. Peary reached the North Pole on a Dreadnought. He adds:

"The reason why he went by sea was because it was cheaper than going by train. The discovery of the North Pole is a good thing, because it is the end of the world."

THE HUNDRETH BIRTHDAY.

Canadian Centenarian Is Given an Ovation at Seaside.

Mr. Thomas J. Darwin, Seaside, Ont., celebrated his hundredth birthday recently. He was born in Seaside, Lancashire, Eng., on September 8, 1800, and came to Canada in 1840, and has resided in Seaside almost ever since.

He is a very old man, but very active. In Britain he was a follower of the party of nonresistance and a great opponent of the war. He was a member of the Non-Resistance Society, and was a great friend of the peace cause.

A NIAGARA LANDSCAPE.

Reveries with haze that mingles and melts free.

Into mysterious depths of either land. The full day roams upon the lustrous lake.

In one long room of golden evening. Now hath the harvest come and gone. The shaven fields stretch smooth and clean away.

Purple and green, and yellow, and not gray. Quivered with orchards. Farther towns and dim villages, whose roofs tops all.

The distant mist, yet scarcely clear the view. Thorold set sultry on its plateau'd hills. And far to westward, where you pointed Rise, far up and ruddy from the vaporous sky. Saint Catharines, city of the host of flowers.

DANCE OF FALSE FACES.

An Iroquois Society in Honor of Mysterious People.

According to the present Iroquois version this earth was created by Haverly before granted upon was made. While this creator was admiring his work a monstrous head with glaring eyes and flowing hair drifted into view.

"What are you doing on my earth?" cried the monster.

"It is not yours, but mine," retorted Haverly.

"The name was the reply. 'I have lived here since the beginning of the world.'"

"I have made the world," cried Haverly.

"Prove it," said the monster, and to demonstrate his power he beckoned to a mountain to approach. It moved up and took a position near the monster.

Now Haverly asked the monster to turn aside for a moment, and at the same time he commanded the mountain to approach so swiftly that it struck the side of the monster's head.

He then twisted the monster's arm, giving it the expression of a modern false face. At this display of mystery power the monster acknowledged Haverly's superiority and begged for his life and that of his people.

CATS AS FISHERMEN.

Animal Sportsmen That Have Ippled Their Masters.

When the cat's well-known aversion to water is taken into account it is surprising to find that in a few instances this domestic feline has allowed itself to be used for fishing.

As reported by Buckland, the English naturalist. A fisherman of Portsmouth had a cat which bore the name of Puddles, and this animal used to accompany him on his nightly fishing trips.

As they neared the fishing grounds the cat would perch itself in the bow of the boat and keep a close watch for the schools. As soon as the boat would get into a school overboard would go Puddles.

On returning in a minute with a fish in its mouth, and it would keep on until fishing was over for the night, apparently enjoying every minute of the time.

The Rev. F. O. Morris, in his anecdotal "Natural History," mentions the case of an Aberdeen fisherman, James Macmillan, who had been seen in the fish market.

He was stopped, swimming and diving about in pursuit of his fishy prey. A friend of his, who was a fisherman, was seen in the fish market.

An 'AD' in this Paper will bring returns

Trade unionism is to-day obtaining the church for supremacy in the hearts of the people, declared Rev. Mr. Stetson, of the Presbyterian Church, the other day. "In their fight for little children who are now working in the mills and factories, in their contention that woman should receive a square deal, in their insistence upon better sanitary conditions in shop and tenement, and in many other respects the trade union has impressed itself upon the minds of men as being a fairly good substitute for the church, because it has been found that these organizations of the workers are factors in the moral development of the people, as well as a source for their physical well being.

A good wagon road from Blair-more across the mountains to the South Fork can be easily constructed if the business men of Blairmore were able to look upon interests.
There will be in the vicinity of 100 or more prospectors employed in the North Kootenay Pass next summer and all the business in carried at the present time to Pincher Creek, where as with the expenditure of a little time and money all the business could be done in Blairmore.

The West Canadian Coal Co. have been developing their extensive coal fields south of Blairmore during the past summer and have been successful in locating and opening up several splendid seams of high grade bituminous coal. Mr. C. Chisholm is in charge of the mining operations and under his directions the mine has developed and today they are prepared to ship 500 to 600 tons per day, and supply at reasonable rates the needs of the community.

The Provincial Government of Alberta have spent $60,000 during the past summer in extending the rural telephone system. Up to date 200 miles have been completed in the various parts of the Province this has given telephone connection to 500 farmers and if the fine weather continues for another six weeks another addition of 200 miles will be made this connecting 200 more farmers to the rural telephone system of Alberta. With the rural telephone system extending so rapidly it will only be a short time until the business men of the West will be able to plug up the farmers when they require the products of the farm.

The new bridges now under construction over Lyon creek and the Old Man river are being built on concrete abutments and are built in such a manner as to resist any pressure which may be brought to bear on them by the spring freshets.
These bridges are being built by the village and are a credit to the village and to those in charge of the work.

The Electric Light Co. who are installing their lighting plant in Blairmore will have their plant in operation in a few days. There are to be three arc lights on the main St. One at the railway crossing, one at the bridge across Lyon Creek, and one opposite Mr. Murphy's store.
These large arc lights will light up our streets very well. There will be a cluster of incandescent lights at the corner of the least important street.
Some of the citizens claim that there should be another arc light between the first two on main St. However these are the first lights that we have had to light up our streets and if they are not sufficient to doubt our village officers will attend to them.

past summer installed a large pressed brick plant on the outskirts of our village. The brick placed on the market from this plant is of first class quality and have been in great demand during the past season. Mr.
Feistler employs about 20 men.

The boxing contest which took place in the Coleman Opera House on the night of the 22nd, attracted a large number of those interested in the manly art of self defence. Robinson demonstrated his superiority over Cyclone. Kid in every round and finally wound up by landing a hay-maker on the Cyclone's jaw which ended the contest. This line of sport is termed "the manly art of self defence" and we have seen several sports who follow this line of amusement throughout the Pass during the past years and with few exceptions they demonstrated that they were thoroughly versed in the manly art both in the ring and out of it. However, there are indications that we are afflicted by an imported line of sports who do not wish to act manly with those who print their bills or with those who house and feed them while in training.

THE CANADIAN NAVY

The Canadian Navy is a live issue at the present time and our leading statesmen are expressing their opinion in after dinner speeches, at smokers, etc. Their wish, few exceptions, favour a navy, and while we are not averse to a navy we would like to see a few millions spent on relieving the present industrial situation throughout the west. Farmers want to be grain shipped. Mine operators want their coal taken away. Workers want steady employment and the business men want more money, all of which could be accomplished if we could only get transportation for the products of the farm, the mill and the mine.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK

Blairmore has come rapidly to the front. During the past summer over forty new residences have been erected and several business blocks. The opening up of the collieries by the West Canadian Coal & Coke Co. has greatly helped to restore confidence in the citizens. Also the completing of the large cement manufacturing plant and the installing of the pressed brick plant by Mr. Henry Pelletier. All of these industries will employ in the neighborhood of two hundred men. In the spring a local company propose to start work excavating for the main line of the water works system. The outlook for the future of Blairmore is bright.

THE EFFECTS OF SOCIALISM

The Provincial Workmen's Association have signed an agreement with the Nova Scotia coal operators and the bitter struggle still continues. Thousands of men are working and thousands are on strike. The severe winter is now setting in and the U. M. W. of A. are building houses for their members and dependents. It is to be regretted that such a condition exists as the fight between the two labor organizations. The P. W. A. claims that the U. M. W. of A. are a foreign organization with socialist doctrines, and they are not prepared to adopt socialism at present, hence the struggle in Cape Breton. The same condition will be brought about in the western mining districts if the policy of the U. M. W. of A. will be continued for another term. No person objects to the socialist party organizing and carrying on their business, the same as any other political party. But when they force their politics on the Trade Unionists of the country and force them to support the socialist program, whether they believe in such doctrines or not. Then there should be a break in the ranks of the workers. Political and religious rights are guaranteed to members joining almost all fraternal and industrial organizations and wherever this rule has been violated, dissension has immediately been the outcome. The workers should not be divided by any political or religious party as far as their Trade Unions are concerned. Outside of their Trade Unions it is their business who they vote for, or to which church they belong.

The time has arrived when, instead of being divided as they are today, the U. M. W. of A., P. W. A., K. of L., I. W. W. and some of others, they should join all together into one great organization, then the working men's organizations would have a power for good in our land if properly directed.

BOWSER THE SWAMP

Nobody Can Work a "Con Game" on Him.

Accuses Man of Swindling.

By M. QUAD.

MR. BOWSER had just got ready to go downtown and do some shopping when he was stopped by a man who was dressed in the best and who opened the door to find a strange man on the steps. He was a workman, and he had in his hand a little box which he opened showing a beautiful ring.

"Lady, I am out of work and my wife is ill, and I want to sell you this article to raise a little money," said the man.

"But you should go to a pawnbroker," was the reply.

"He will sell you a watch, and that not half its value," said the man.

"The pin may be brass for all I know," said Mr. Bowser after looking at it.

"Lady, I pledge you my word that it's solid gold. It was a wedding present to my wife. It's worth $10, but you may have it for $2."

"I ask you if I look like a thief? I'll give you my name and address and you can send your things as I tell you. Take it for $2, for I must have money. The doctor has left a prescription that I must have."

"Mrs. Bowser had heard much about fakers that she was afraid, and yet she had to admit that the man looked well, and she was not. After a brief mental struggle she handed over the money and said she would keep the pin simply as a security. When the man had departed it struck her to take the pin along and ask a jeweler.

"Officer, here is a man I want to give in charge. He's a swindler."

"Aren't you mistaken?" asked the officer. "I have known the man two or three years. He's a hard worker and out of luck. He was asking me to buy a bracelet for his wife."

"But he told me it was gold, and it's brass. The diamonds in his ring are only glass."

The sergeant sent for a jeweler across the street, and when the man had been examined and reported that the bracelet was brass, Mr. Bowser stood with open mouth and might have remained on his knees for some time.

"Better run home now, and try to lose some of your swindlers on the way," said the officer.

"Well," said Mrs. Bowser, as he arrived.

"Poor and careless, the whole pack of 'em," cried as he sat down with a grunt. And that's all she got out of him.

Mrs. Nonsense.

"I wish," she complained, "that you wouldn't talk so much nonsense to me."

"I didn't know that I talked nonsense," said she.

"You're always telling me about yourself and what you have been doing," Chicago Record-Herald.

An Oreal.

"Father," said little "Loo," "what is an oreal?"

"In many cases, my son, an oreal witness is a man who is willing, for a consideration, to go on the stand and let the lawyers give him the third degree," Washington Star.

True to Principle.

"Why didn't you sign the paper which was so highly recommended for your cure?"

"I signed it," said the advertiser, and said he had such liquid trouble, and this is a dry town, sir," Baltimore American.

Noncommittal.

"Would you like a cheap hammock or a good strong one?" asked the salesman.

"A capable salesman could tell by the buyer's appearance," the answered laughingly, Cleveland Leader.

A Georgia Tex.

It's a pretty hard matter to run the world over in, and yet there are folks that think they are. They are the folks who get the special instructions in the art of trying—Atlanta Constitution.

Mixed Housekeeping.

"Can your daughter who is just married make good bread?"

"I don't know," said the husband, "she got the dough," Baltimore American.

Quite Appropriate.

"Tippler," said the cookmaker employed in the mint district.

"Nibbler," Mint Julep, I suppose," Brooklyn Eagle.

A Widespread Hope.

"I've never crossed the wide blue sea. I have to figure carefully."

"But some day my first voyage shall be the finest on the block."

"I'll be among the leading men and live in independence when I sail."

"I have to labor, wet or dry."

"And sleep and save with care."

"I always am compelled to wait."

"The day after tomorrow I will be rich."

"But some day I will cease to sigh."

"In my leisure I'll give."

"And in my leisure I'll give."

"My mining stock is at."

"I wish you would take it to a lawyer and see what he says," said Mr. Bowser to a man who was standing in front of him.

"What? Don't you believe what I've said?"

"You've seemed so sure. I can't somehow believe he would and looked in the eye and lied to me. And the pin seems like gold to me."

"I'm a lawyer," said the man. "I'll tell you what. If you want to be sure, I'll take you to a lawyer and see what he says."

"How can he say anything else? Why don't you own up that you've been played?"

FIFTY YEARS A WRITER.

How Miss Braddon Came to Write Novels.

As a Girl, Popular Authors Was Always Scribbling—Was Offered $50 for First Novel—Wrote: First Installment of Lady Audley's Secret Overnight—Has Retained First Rank Ever Since.

To have delighted the world for half a century with an unceasing stream of fiction to have published a novel for every year of her long life, and to be able to enhance the readers of to-day as she enhanced their grandfathers in the middle of last century is the proud record of Miss Braddon, who at seventy-two is still so potent the secret of perennial youth.

"Much water has run under the bridge of fiction," she has said, "since Mary Elizabeth Braddon laboriously wrote her first story by its banks at the age of sixteen."

"I was a scribbler from the first," she said, "and between pencilled lines. The love of the pen was in the little ones of her family."

We take this opportunity of thanking the residents of Blairmore and Coleman for the patronage so heartily extended to our Blairmore branch. Our store is now well stocked in every line. Our policy is to give satisfaction and incidentally a lot of bargains.

The Celebrated JAPANESE WARE is now opened. Come to our store and examine our leader, a 42 piece, hand painted, Nippon Tea Set at $17.50. To examine the actual harmony of coloring and hear the true ring of good chinaware is more satisfactory to you than indistinct prints and catalogue descriptions. Spend a few hours looking around our store and get acquainted with the latest styles in fancy ware. Some of the designs are being snapped up directly they are shown. Our supply threatens to run out long before Xmas. Next week we will make a special offer to the children.
